BHAG UPDATE

Top: Jheny

Below: Estephanie

Our original BHAG (Big Hairy Audacious Goal) date has passed without getting all the children sponsored by the set date. The positive side of the BHAG is that we did get 10 new children sponsored that were not previously sponsored through Project James. BIG THANK YOU TO THOSE NEW FAMILIES AND GROUPS THAT JOINED AS A SPONSOR!

WE will continue the BHAG to get a sponsor for every-one of these children at Christian Light School and orphanage. Our new date for the BHAG will be our return date on November 1 for our fall mission trip. So if you were thinking about joining us for the BHAG and sponsoring one of these children. Now is the time to get on board to help us meet this BHAG and impact these children's lives.

Jheny is a bright young lady entering 9th grade this fall who likes to play guitar.

Estephanie is an intelligent young lady entering 6th grade this fall who likes to jump rope.

Anderson is a smart young man entering 7th grade this fall who likes to play soccer.

HAITI MISSION TRIP

Our next team mission trip will be on November 1-8, 2012. It is not too early to get your deposit in and start preparing for this trip (vaccinations, passports). We have had quite a few inquires into the next trip so I am encouraging those of you who want to go, get those deposits in to reserve your spot. The earlier we get reservations for tickets the better the price for the trip as well. It appears we will be able to hold cost at or below $1200.00 per person if we get tickets early enough.

A $500 dollar nonrefundable deposit will reserve your ticket and space.

18 great team members from our last trip in March.

RED DAY EVENT

Project James had the privilege to partner with Keller Williams in their annual event called Red Day. Red Day is where Keller Williams employees and family members find a community service project to go out and perform to help those who need a hand in some way. Their theme this year was give where you live. A friend of mine Jeff Beuhler who works at Keller Williams invited me to share about Project James and they took on two local Projects of helping two lovely elderly ladies who just needed some things done around their houses.

The first lady Ms. Bacot just wanted a team to clean up her yard that was over grown. The second lady Ms. Brown needed some more serious work done around the house. Her front porch needed some extra bracing and one of her front porch columns was rotting and a rear porch column was missing as well as a hand rail. Both teams donated their time to help these ladies and did a great job.

YARD SALE & PEANUT BUTTER

We are accumulating a good amount of stuff for our yard sale we hope to have soon. The storage unit is starting to fill up with all sorts of items. If you would like to donate anything for the yard sale just let us know and we will make arrangements to pick it up from you.

We also have room to store and collect Peanut Butter for the peanut butter balls that are used in the food distribution program in Haiti. We will also be most grateful for jars of peanut butter. We will also come and pick up from you anytime you would like to donate this precious resource.
